What I met The Fowles over lunch in LA, I developed an instant style crush on Parisa, one half of the design duo behind the ready-to-wear brand MaxFowles. Her look was effortlessly cool, causally confident, and screamed jetsetter. Having lived all over the world themselves, Max and Parisa Fowles-Pazdro created MaxFowles with the international city girl in mind. Their namesake brand launched its first women's collection this fall, sold at Elyse Walker in LA and on RevolveClothing.com, and will be expanding in the future to include menswear, activewear, women's accessories, and home interiors.

Here Parisa shows off three killer transitional fall outfit ideas (especially appropriate for those gals who live in warmer climates).

Parisa's shorts, tuxedo blouse, and blazer are Maxfowles, shoes by Jean-Michele Cazabat, bracelets by Chloe, Hermes, and Cartier, and vintage Rolex watch.

Her personal style: "My style changes depending on where I am. I always try to keep my look simple and clean. In LA I feel a little more casual and certainly wear flats more often. When I'm in NYC, I never leave the house without pumps. I feel that New York makes you step it up a notch, which I love. And, I always like having the blouse very unbuttoned - it's a MaxFowles signature to have a very open shirt."

Her go-to outfit: "MaxFowles jeans with leather knee patches and oversize modal vest."

Here, Parisa's wearing a sweater and leather pants by MaxFowles, shoes by Jean-Michele Cazabat, bracelets by Chloe, Hermes, and Cartier, and vintage Rolex watch.

The best styling advice she's ever received: "Always have groomed nails and eyebrows. However, the last few months have been very intense and haven't allowed me to follow my weekly rule!"

Where she shops: Elyse Walker, Just One Eye, Jeffrey, Bergdorf Goodman, RevolveClothing.com

In a MaxFowles dress.

The vibe of her office: "Architectural and clean, with high ceilings. We like to have a creative space, as opposed to a generic institutional office space. Our team is very entrepreneurial - this is the signature element we look for in every team member. No one is just an employee."

How cool does she look? What do you think of Parisa's outfits?
